1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. The claims are generally narrative and indefinite, failing to conform with current U.S. practice. They appear to be a literal translation into English from a foreign document and are replete with grammatical idiomatic and other errors. For example only, note the phrase beginning with “optionally” in claim 1. Revisions are required wherever appropriate.
3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(c) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b or e) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over GB 2,250,978, Pora or Volckening et al, each cited by applicants, or Friberg et al., Fry et al., Breu et al., Patterson or ColDepietro et al. Each reference discloses a medicine pack comprising a plurality of blister units, each blister unit comprising a protective case with a blister strip affixed therein. All of the protective cases can also be “opened out” as claimed. Moreover, some of the references teach that the blister units can be placed and fixed in an outer package. Note, for example, Pora.

Additionally, the examiner finds that it is a notorious expedient to package primary packaging, such as the above noted blister units of the prior art, within secondary packaging such as a larger paperboard carton or box having flaps for closing (and re-closing) the box. Such a box is known in the art to be resilient based on the use of paperboard for the construction thereof. The examiner also finds that it is notorious to wrap a paperboard box in a film type wrapper such as cellophane or other film to provide additional protection to the contents thereof beyond the protection afforded by the paperboard. The ubiquitous cigarette carton is but one example of such well known packaging. Accordingly, to the extent any of the applied references is later deemed to be missing secondary packaging such as an outer carton or package (and even tertiary packaging such as another box for a plurality of the outer cartons, if required in any claim), and a wrapper of film for the outer carton, the examiner considers that it would have been obvious to provide each of the devices of the applied prior art with such elements or features, for the purpose of facilitating distribution of substantial quantities of the blister units and providing adequate protection for the blister units during such distribution.

6. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Jacob K. Ackun Jr. whose telephone number is (571)272-4418. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday through Friday 8.30AM-5.00PM.
